(II) Hollywood

To many people, the word Hollywood has two meanings, the area in Los Angeles, and Hollywood the American movie industry. Hollywood was just farmland at the beginning of this century. Early American movies were filmed in other locations like New York and Chicago.

In 1917 a director was filming a movie in Chicago. Because of cold weather, he couldn’t finish the movie. He took a trip to southern California, and there he found just the weather and scenery he needed to finish his movie. The director realized that southern California was the perfect place for making movies. The next year his company built a movie studio in Hollywood. Other companies followed. Before long nearly all major American movie studios were in Hollywood, Los Angeles.

The next thirty years were Hollywood’s greatest years. Thousands of movies were made, most by a few large and powerful studios. Directors, actors, and writers worked for these studios. They made some movies that today are considered classics. Hollywood the area in Los Angeles, also reached its high point during these years. Many famous and glamorous movie stars, like Bette Davis and Clark Gable, lived in Hollywood.

Today, Hollywood is not as fast paced and productive as it was in the beginning. More movies are made outside of Hollywood. Many studios have moved. Many movie stars have also moved away from Hollywood to areas like Beverly Hills and Malibu. Visitors to Hollywood can go to the famous Chinese Theater and see the footprints and autographs of movie stars. They can go down the Walk of Fame, on Hollywood Boulevard, and see the golden stars in the sidewalk.
